

ENVIRONMENT AND MILITARISM

Our goal: Transform ideas of security from that of military might into human rights, justice and peace for all.

Why: Military activities devastate the environment - urban and rural. Air, food, water, DNA - all are affected. As primary carers, women bear the brunt of these changes.

How: Incorporate gender analysis into work on environmental degradation, particularly resource pollution, land control disputes and mass migration, with a focus on that caused by military action, including the development, production and sales of arms.
